MARINE BANK DIRECTORS.

WHAT THEY KNEW ABOUT THE LOANS.

TWO ACCOUNTS.

THERE OF THEM EXAMINED—GRANT AND WARD'S

TWO ACCOUNTS.

The variety caused by a more frequent change of witnesses led to a larger attendance at the trial of James D. Fish yesterday in the United States Circuit Court than on the few days proceeding. Benjamin Fish, the paying teller of the bank and brother of the defendant, was on the witness stand for a short time, until Mr. Clarke finished the cross-examination, began on the previous day. M. H. Gilchrist, a bookkeeper of the bank, testified about a book called the "loan and average book," which contained a summary of the loans and of the balances of the accounts. It was used by the directors for reference, but did not contain the statement of Grant & Ward's "special" account, so that, the witness sand, a director consulting the book would not know of the starge everdraft which existed in the "special" account for many successive days.

Carsten Sierck, who told Judge Benedict that he was a "surgarman," but who was stout and florid, testified that he was a director of the Marine Bank. He was chairman of a cammittee of directors who made an examination of the condition of the bank on April 24 and 25, 1884. They examined the loan envelopes, but did so thind any without securities in them. The directors meton Tresdays and Fridays of each week. The president or the secretary of the band would report as to loans that had been made since the last meeting. The witness did not know di loans made without security. He never deatts in the accounts of Grant & Ward when he was indersing their notes. On cross-examination the witness said that he thought it proper for a bank to loan money on a note without collateral. The firm of Havemeyer & Elder, with which he was connected, secured loans in that way, and a loan of $25,000 had at one time been made to take firm by the Marine Bank on notes.

Henry E. Daboll, a bookkeeper, testified that he had made up a report that was signed on April 25, 1884, by Mr. Fish and other directors. He made up the statement of loans and collaterals Mallory and Armstrong, in whose names large loans were made, were in the employ of Grant & Ward. Henry Barrow, another director, was equally without knowledge of the "centract" loans, of loans without security, and of Grant & Ward's double account. He examined the bank on April 21 without finding the empty loan envelopes. Mr. Poot saked:

Root asked:

Was Mr. Ward active in the examination?
The witness—Very active. He was quicker than the rest of us in handling the securities.

Mr. Root—Did you know that Messrs. Spencer, Mallory and Armstrong were employed by Grant & Ward and that loans to them were charged to the firm's account?
The witness—No, sir.

Mr. Root—So that if Mr. Ward, sitting at the other end of the table, had called out a loan to George E. Spencer, or Mallory, or Armstrong, and reported the securities to be all right, you would not have known he was examining his own loans?
The witness—No, sir.

Mr. Barrow shook his head vigorously and said

Mr. Barrow shook his head vigorously and said "Never," emphatically when asked by Judge Benedict whether Mr. Fish had reported a series of overdrafts in Grant & Ward's account.

INVESTORS IN REALTY OUT IN FORCE. SUCCESSFUL SALE OR THE LOVETT ESTATE-ACTIVE BIDDING AT AUCTION.

BIDDING AT AUCTION.

The Exchange salesroom was crowded yesterday by investors and speculators attracted by the sale at auction, by Louis Messier, of the valuable property belonging to the estate of George Lovett. The bidding was sortited, and the competition was so warm that good prices were generally realized for reality that based, with only one exception, into the hands of persons who sought the investments for their actual income. Dealers commented on the sale as an important indication of the condition of the real estate market as regards good incomeyielding property. The buildings No. 228 Merrerst, and No. 661 Broadway, were sold for $93,700 to Moses Sahlem; the total rental is $4,620. John D. Wendel bought the buildings running through from Nos. 687 and 689 Broadway to Nos. 250 and 250 Mercerst, for $150,000. The rentals from this property amount to $10,800. S. T. HORSE SENSE IN THE COTTON EXCHANGE. "We do not pretend to be lawyers nor parlia-neutarians, but we are business men who want to do pusiness and discuss matters upon horse-sense prin-ples," was a remark made yesterday at a meeting business and discuss matters upon horse-sense principles," was a remark made yesterday at a meeting of the Cotton Exchange when a proposition to strike a clause from the rules providing for the expulsion of the members who violate the law fixing the rate of commissions for doing business. Mr. Storms, a lawyer, had given an opinion that the by-law as a whole was illegal. Mr. Scott, Assistant Corporation Counsel, and counsel to the Exchange, had given an opinion that the Exchange had the right to fix commissions, but he was not certain that the penalty clause was legal, although he thought it was.

A motion was made to adjourn when Henry cortain that the penalty clause was legal, although he thought it was.

A motion was made to adjourn when Henry Heniz moved as a substitute that the two opinions be printed and distributed, and further discussion be postponed for a week. When several objected to Mr. Hentz's motion he introduced it as an amendment to the one to adjourn. Then there was a excited controversy on parliamentary law, when George Valentine quoted from "Cushing's Manaal." Then Mr. Hentz's motion was declared out of order and the motion to adjourn was withdrawn. Vice-President C. D. Miller said there was no necessity of further discussion, and that it was well known that the rule was violated every day, not alone by its opponents but by its advocates as well, and that the Exchange was the sufferer thereby. A motion was made to read the opinion of Mr. Scott.

"Humbug! blot it out!" cried Treasurer Walter

A. R. PARSONS'S EMPTY UTTERANCES.

Justus Schwab, the First-st. beer-seller, and A. R. Parsons, of Chicago, made speeches on Wednesday evening in Louisville. Parsons told the mixed crowd that heard him that the Socialists and Anarchists were organized and armed, and numbered 5,000 men. In New-York City, he alleged, there is a registry of 8,000, most of whom are armed.

Alexander Jonas, the Editor of the Socialist organ of this city, ridiculed the assertion of the blatant Parsons when spoken to on the subject. "These men are telling falsehoods," hesaid, "there are not above 3,000 registered Socialists in the entire United Statesand Canada, and they are not armed, as we are not advocates of violence. As forthose Anarchists that Schwab, Parsons and Most prate about, right here in what is called the hot-bed of Anarchism, it would be impossible to rake together 200 Anarchists, who are organized as such in this city, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Newark combined. Schwab is a fraud and impostor,"

RECKLESS USE OF BEAN-SHOOTERS. A WOMAN INJURED SERIOUSLY-HORSES FRIGHT-ENED AND HURT, RECKLESS USE OF BEAN-SICO.

A WOMAN INJURED SERIOUSLY—HORSES FRIGHT-ENED AND HURT.

The attention of the Health Department has been called to the reckless use of bean-shooters. Lads whose ages range from eight to tweive years, living in the neighborhood east of Madison-ave., between Fifty-ninth and Seventieth sts., have caused much annoyance to liverymen and other owners of horses lately by hurling buckshot or chunks of lead at the animals in the street. By means of a bean-shooter,—a strong tubber band attached to the prongs of a forked stack—the boys are able to throw a small piece of lead with force enough to inflict a slight wound in the side of a horse.

Mrs. Seth M. Corwin, the wife of a cloak mannfacturer at No. 353 Canal-st., was hurt seriously on Thursday of last week by one of these boys. She was walking from her home at No. 750 Lexington-ave. to the house of her mother, Mrs. Silleck, at No. 700 Madison-ave., and passed a stable in front of which horses were being unhitched from a carriage. She was startled by a sudden movement of the horses and by shouts of the men. A mounent afterward, when she was near the carriage, she felt a stinging sensation behind her left car and felt in a swoon su the sidewalk. She was under the impression, when she regained her senses, that she had been struck with a whip. With some assistance she went to her mother's house, but was soon obliged to lie down. Blood streamed profusely from a wound behind her car. A physician, who was summoned promotly, found that a leaden slig had passed through her bonnet and a thick braid of hair and had imbedded itself under the skin. The shock to Mrs. Corwin's nervous system was great. Mr. Corwin said yesterday that his wife was still too ill to give an intelligent description of the manner in which she received the injury. She has been kept in bed by the advice of a physician, and has had a succession of fainting spells notwithstanding the care taken to keep her quiet. The family believe that she was injured by accident.

In reply to a question from Commissioner Luther R. Marsh, it was stated that Mr. Lorrilard's first name was written "Peter" in various deeds giving him the title to property in Westchester County. "Pierre Lolrilard is his society name." said Lawyer Bartlett, who represented the Corporation Counsel. "The other is his business name." Five acres of the land, situated on an island, were sold for $1,500 in 1863, and subsequently the entire tract brought $27,500.

SORAKICHI UNDER ARREST.

SORAKICHI UNDER ARREST.

Sorakichi, the sturdy Japanese who holds Fox's medal for wrestling, went with his handsome and richly-dressed Caucasian wife in a cab, from his lodging-house at No. 44 Bond-st. to Jefferson Market Court yesterday, to make a complaint against a friend who visited him frequently and borrowed his dress suit and his championship, medal among other things, which he neglected to return. On arrival at court he was surprised to find himself arrested on a charge made by his wife for habitually assaulting her and threatening to cut ber throat with a razor. The wife after going to court with him in a cab assumed to be in deadly terror of him, so much so, that two police efficers were required to give her assurance enough to stand up before him and make the charge, An interpreter was found, through whom the athletic Japanese informed the court that the charge took him by surprise. 'He likes his wife very mach,' said the taterpreter, "and never thought of such bad thing as cut her throat.' Mr. and Mrs. Sorakeni promised to go to court to-day and take the borrowing friend with them. Justice Gorman expressed the opinion that the woman's fear was probably due to her high nervous temperament.

AFRAID OF HIS SWEETHEART'S FATHER. AFRAID OF HIS SWEETHEART'S FATHER.

A young woman went to the Jefferson Market Court yesterday accompanied by a young man whom she intents to marry, after Lent, and applied for a warrant for the arrest of her father, Daniel Mahöney, of No. 121 Ninth-ave. She complained that her father had ill-treated her ever since she left school, two years ago, but had become particularly violent since he had learned that she intended to marry the youth who stood by her side. Justice Gorman, knowing Mr. Mahoney as "a very decent man" declined to issue a warrant for his arrest, but proposed to grant a summons, and suggested man "declined to issue a warrant for his arrest, but proposed to grant a summons, and suggested that it should be served by the prospective husband of the complainant. The young man, whose name is Thomas J. Convers, smiled a tearful smile, and told the Justice that he dare not go near Mr. Mahoney, as he had already been kicked down starts by the old gentleman, who had threatened to annihilate him the next time he caught him. A summons calling Mr. Mahoney to court to-day was issued, to be served by a person not interested in the family relations.

The funeral of Gordon W. Burnham will be held to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock in Graze Church, and the burial will be in Greenwood. The Rev. Dr. Huntington will conduct the services, and Assist ant Bishop Potter will read the commitment. It has not been decided when Mr. Burnham's will will be read. He leaves property estimated at about two millions, and there are two sons to share it. They have expressed themselves as entirely satisfied with the feedcall made last friday, by which a provision was made for Miss Kate Sauborn, whom Mr. Burnham was to have married yesterday. Miss Sauborn is still at the house in Fifth-ave., where she faithfully attended Mr. Burnham during his illness.

DEATH NOT TOO SEVERE A PENALTY. Charles H. Cummings, who was convicted of an outrageous assault on a child at No. 512 West Tweaty-first-st., on February 18, was arraigned for sentence yesterday before Recorder Smyth. The Recorder said:

It has been my lot to sentence four men to be hanged by the neck—the highest penalty provided by law for any offence—and in no case have I done so without some feei-ing of pity in my heart. But if the law were as it once was, so that in this case I could sentence to the death penalty, I should do so feeling that it was fully deserved. He sentenced the prisoner to twenty years in the State Prison, the full legal term.

The second day of Wiggins's promised week of storms, earthquakes and tidal-waves, which were to stretch from the Arctic Circle to Sandy Hook, passed without the great destruction of property that was threatened. The 'old saits' and other habitues of the water-front, though having no faith in Wiggins or his alarming predictions, watched with much interest the incoming tide for the tidal-wave that was to tear the vessels from their moorings and sweep them up to Central Park; but it didn't come and Wiggins was pronounced a full fledged El Mahdt.

A. B. Leuf, John F. Valentine and G. W. Cushing, and two representatives of the Brooklyn Roller Skating Rink were present. Death was found to be due to cerebral meningitis. The inquest will be held in two weeks, and physicians and roller skating experts will be called in to give evidence.

NEWS FROM THE SUBURBS. NEWARK POLITICIANS AROUSED.

The Democratic politicians in Newark were taken completely by surprise by the sudden move of the Republican majority in the Common Council on Wednesday night in passing a resolution dismissing 118 members of the police force and making appointments in their stead. Of the men dismissed appointments in their stead. Of the men dismissed torty-six were reappointed, among whom are a number of pronounced Democrats. One year ago the Democrats removed 111 policemen because they were Republicans and appointed Democrats in their places. Last fail the Democrats were turned out of power but before the Council of that year finally adjourned it passed an ordinance which required that changes in the police department could only be made by ordinance requiring the assent of the Democrate Mayor. To ordinance which required that changes in the police department could only be made by ordinance requiring the assent of the Democratic Mayor. To pass an ordinance over his veto would require a two-thirds vote, which the Republican majority lacked. The hands of the new Council were thus tied. When the Legislature met Senator Fish, of Essex, introduced a bill empowering the Common Council to appoint and dismiss by resolution. This bill passed the Legislature, and was veteed by the Governor on the ground that it was special legislation, which is prohibited by the Constitution. The bill was passed over the veto last week and became a law. Senator Fish has since introduced a bill in the Senate to make the Folice Department non-partisan. It was in anticipation of this bill becoming a law and to assert the authority of the Comiton Council as always heretofore exercised that the special meeting was called on Wednesday night. After the appointments were made the new policemen were promptly sworn in by the Republican City Clerk. The Democratic after head publicand that the a tion of the Council was illegal. Mayor Haynes went to Police Headquarters and ordered the Democratic incumbents to retain possession and not to recognize the new appointees, many of whom thronged about the door. The Mayor remained the Democratic incumbents to retain possession and not to recognize the new appointoes, many of whom thronged about the door. The Mayor remained at the neadquarters all night. Meanwhile the Democratic leaders empicyed the services of Henry Young, a former Republican City Counsel, who served notice on City Counsel, who served notice on City Counsel Coult that he would apply to the Supreme Court at Frenton at 9:30 a. m. to-day for a writ of certiorari to have the whole matter reviewed. There was no disorder at the police stations during the night. Stalwart policemen stood on gnard at the entrances to prevent any move on the part of the Kepabican appointees, while the Kepublican Caief of Police with the 4Police Committee of the Common Council occupied the Chief's private rooms. At 9 a. m. the Mayor took breakinst and announced his intention to nold ais position there and apply to the Governor for full power to quell any disturbance of the peace. A position there and apply to the Governor for fair power to quell any disturbance of the peace. A large number of the new policemen blocked up the sidewalk in front of Police Headquarters, but were ordered off by the Democratic officers in charge, In the Supreme Court at Trenton in the moraing Judge Depue granted a rule upon application of Lenry Young, to show cause why the certiforari icency Young, to show cause why the certifrary should not issue, making it returnable on Saturnay thorning at the Coart House in Newark, and ordered a stay of proceedings meanwhile. The certifrary is asked for a review by the Coart of the legality of the entire proceedings of the council. If the coart shall decide to-morrow that sufficient cause is shown the matter will be argued before the Supreme Coart at Trenton. In the afternoon the papers in the case were presented to City Counsel Coult. If the matter goes to a hearing the court will arrange one for an early date.

Bridgeport.—General Dwight Morris presided over a meeting of the Fairfield County Bar yesterday and it was voted to build a new court house.

South Norwalk.—The Mechanics' Journal said yesterday: "The shipments of the four hat shops still doing business with 'foul' men have fallen below thirty dozen a day. Of the rumors about a change in the present situation it is not necessary to speak. Events will take their proper course, and the hatters and the lady trimmers are perfectly able and willing to await whatever developments the future may have in store for them."

WAKING UP SLEEPY HOLLOW VALLEY. *

WARING UP SLEEPY HOLLOW VALLEY.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

SIR: For the last week or two the greatest excitement has prevailed in this neighborhood and along the Sleepy Hollow Vailey; nothing like it has occurred since the Revolution of old. The Kilkenny cats of the Democratic party formed themselves into two factions, both contending for the spoils of office. The old winning side at every cancus felt sure of being the rulers of the spoils. The fragments of the other side railied their strength together, and marched along Sleepy Hollow Valley; they woke up the old slumberers until they hit the fine of the Harlem Railrond, being determined that the next division of the spoils should come through their hands. They marched from hill and mountain to the caucus with the war boop of "Victory or death." The old winning side lay on their oars, and were sure that nothing could knock them from their stronghold, but they found when the poils closed that they were defeated. On the following day the final test took place for village trustees. The old party with blood in their eyes, marshalled their forces together, and were determined that the ground they lost on the night previous should be regained, or like the Spartams of old, they would die with their shields on them. They railed every available voter to the polls and marching in solid column, they wiped out the Minnerlys and O'Maras in the most trimphant manner, and are determined hereafter never again to be caught napping.

ENGLISHMEN GETTING THEIR EYES OPEN.

From a private letter from an American long resident in England.

From a private letter from an American long resident in England.

Just now England is in a peck of troubles and things look gloomy. India, Egypt, South Africa and Ireland are all giving her trouble, to say nothing of Russia and France, who are decidedly unfriendly, and it will require patience, courage and careful management to work out of her difficulties. But besides those external troubles, her internal troubles are serious enough and show no present signs of mending. The farming class is badly off, and has been so for several years, and their sufferings are now shared by the landlords and the landerers. The landlords have had to lower rents very greatly—from 25 to 50 per cent—and many of them have unlet farms on their hands. Their lands are so charged with a stitements and mortgages, etc., that the owners, though apparently wealthy men and receiving large incomes, are really in a state of collapse. The wages of the laborers in many counties amount to 50 cents a day, and on that they have to live or eise go to the poorhouse. The farmers are losing money every year. A farmer in Scotland paid his landlord 21,500 the other day to have his lease cancelled, and others were willing to do the same. The constantly increasing importation of food articles from all quarters of the world is making such havoc with hone farming that there is a growing feeling in favor of protection; if those interested in farming went to the polis to-day I am half inclined to believe that they would vote for a duty on wheat, cattle, meat, etc., sithough the people would have to pay dearer for their food in consequence; but as a man said to me in the train last week when we were discussing the present condition: "What is the advantage of cheap food when the people have no means of buying it! If the people had steady work at better wages they could buy the food, although coming higher; now they can't." I fancy this feeling is very prevalent. They say, what is the good of our having free trade, when no other country has it! It is getting to

The distress and destitution among the lower classes to as great as ever. Some starting articles have appeared in the papers describing the tremendous struggle for work in the East End of London. The country is dotted all over with men and women travelling from place to place in search of work or charity. They wank the stroets singing hymns, but not daring to beg, for fear of the police—very willing, however, to accept pence, or even shillings, when offered,

A POEM SHE SHOWED TO THE ANALYSIS FROM The Backon Courter.

She was young and beautiful, with eyes as bine as the skies of a New-England autumn noon and bright as the stars that light the polar midnight, golden treases, checks like June roses and lips red as the coral that is found on the shores of the verdire-clad islands of the Southern Pacific. The editor smiled upon her as she that is found on the shores of the verbine-cial islands of the Southern Pacific. The editor smiled upon her as she entered and said gentally:

"Fray, take a seat, miss."
Seating herself, she said:

"Here is a poem—"
The editor rose with a frown, walked to the door, kicked the office cat down three flights of stairs, although the obliging animal had eaten up the funny man's copy the night before, returned to his seat, pushed his flingers through his har, and said in tones from which all the kindness ned fleef:

"Well, let's lear it."

"A poem," she continued sweetly, "written by Lord-Byron entitled. The Maid of Athens, and the hast line of each stanza is in Greek. Having no knowledge of that language I have ventured to call upon you, hoping that you will have the kindness to translate the line for me."

me."

A smile illumined the editor's face: he took the beautifully written manuscript copy of the poem from the hands of the charming creature, and translated the Greek into rich and sonorous English. Then as the matien took her departure smiling and gurgling her thanks, he bowed her out with a Chestericidian grace and courtesy that only editors can assume.
